JERRY FOLEY IS REAL HARD-LUCK CHAMPION

Assistant Secretary to Senator Kern Has Tale of Long Waits For Patronage.

Here's the original hard-luck chamon of the United States. His name is Jerry Foley, he halls from dianapolis, and just now he's holding own the job of assistant secretary to enator Kern of Indiana. Be it known. owever, that his hard-luck title is due either to the fact that his name is oley, nor that he comes from Indiana, nd, surely, not because he is assistant ecretary to Senator Kern.

Jerry, you know, had the reputation back home, of being the best telegraph operator in the State. And it was just on account of this fourth eminent asset hat Jerry was elected a charter memer of the Universal Union of Unfor-

Hard luck was Jerry's right bower or years and years. To begin with, some forty years ago, when Jerry first broke into the game of politics, he cast his lot with the Democrats. Jerry stuck to the party, through long, weary years of famine, and, finally the G. O. P. struck a snag and the Dems elected Cleveland and Hendricks.

Ordered To Washington. At last it seemed as though the fates had let up on Harry, for Vice President Hendricks, a personal friend, promised if the appointment of a promised if the appointment of a Senate telegraph operator rested with him, Jerry would get the job. Soon after, a hurry call notified Jerry that the appointment would go through, and he was ordered to Washington. Indianapolis still dates all modern history from the day Jerry left for the Capital City. Never was there a demonstration like that which marked his departure. Having "blown in" his savings on a complete new set of sceners, Jerry was togged out this day like a circus horse. He had on everything but the kitchen sink and the door mat.

His friends, whose number is legion.
escorted him to the station with a brass band and red fire, and off he went, attisfied in his own mind, that his bad uck had deserted him forever.

But, alas and alack! The fates decreed otherwise. The "Chicago Limited," which was speeding Jerry to Washneton, passed on route the very train. ngton, passed en route the very train which was taking Vice President Hendricks home to die. Just after he had sent Jerry the message, Mr. Hendricks fell sick, was taken home, and died there a day or two later, before he had lime to send in Jerry's name for the ob.

Sticks To Party.

Undaunted, however, Jerry stuck to the party, and, after thirty years of successive defeats, his party finally obained control of the lower branch of ongress, in 1911, and once more things ooked bright.

When the party leaders got together it was the opinion of the entire Western elegation that Jerry should be rewarded, and he was advised that his name would be again presented, this time as House telegrapher.

Just when everything looked rosy for Jerry the committee on patronage clip-ped off some $250,000 worth of jobs, in-cluding the appropriations for teleg-

This is his story. One must not get the idea, however, that Jerry is a Gloomy Gus. Far be it. He is the very embodiment of sunshine, cheerfulness, and optimism. If you want to be con-vinced, call 'round and see him any day at the Senate Office building, and you will come away positive that there breathes nowhere a happier individual

Ceylon the Subject of Elmendorf Traveltalk

Beginning his 1914 series of travel lectures yesterday in the National Theater with Ceylon, Dwight Elmendorf took his hearers on a tour of that British possession. A large audience gave Mr. El-mendorf an enthusiastic welcome which called forth a speech from the lecturer He told his audience that he had travelled 42,000 miles since he had last visited Washington, and thanked his admirers Washington, and thanked his admirers for their very cordial greeting. Then, after a "puffy" day on the Indian ocean his fellow-travelers disembarked with him at Colombo, going up the main street of this busy city, meeting the brown natives, and being introduced to the island method of transportation—the rickshaw. The Sinhalese men and women were shown at their occupations, their vari-colored costumes, dding a bright touch to the scenes. Hindu temples thousands of years old, images of the god Buddha, and other sacred relics were viewed, then the visitors were taken to a godown, where the Sinhalese women were shown preparing graphite women were shown preparing graphite

Five Measures May Be Reported Within Ten Days, Is Hope of Leaders.

A race between rival House commit ees to present respective anti-trust bills before them to the House developed today. Leaders of the Interstate Con merce and Judiciary Committees stated today that it is possible that the five bills may be reported within ten days. All hearings before both committees will shut down within a week, it was stated today. The hearings on the interstate trade commission bill have been concluded; those upon the railroad stock and bond bill will be finished next week, and those upon the three bills before the Judiciary Committee, amending the Sherman law, will close next Friday.

SAYS BALLOT WILL CURE DISTRICT ILLS

Michael I. Weller Telis Study Club Conditions Are "The Shame of Congress."

Government by the people was urged as the remedy for the present ills of the District last night by Michael I. Weller in an address before the Study Club in Economics at Ingram Memorial Church "The present government of the Dis trict finds itself unable to maintain the night schools, cannot furnish water without a high tax, has difficulty to clear the streets of snow and is troubled by many other problems," said Mr. Wel-"That is sufficient argument for allowing the people to govern themselves. If the citizens managed their own affairs e would have no such conditions." Mr. Weller characterized the present form of government as "a brilliant ab-

Mr. Weller said it was "to the shame of Congress" that night schools had been closed for want of money. "If No Improvement Noted the people were governing themselves." he said, "we would not build bridges that cost millions, to develop the property of real estate men, but would spend some of that money to maintain night schools."

"Georgetown governed itself under a mayoralty system long after it was included in the District," Mr. Weller said. "Washington was not given a charter until 1802, when Thomas Jefferson provided that the city should be governed by an appointed mayor. Washingtonians were displeased when they saw Georgetown governing it their own government.

"In 1820 the city elected its own mayor."

Kennedy, Bishop of Adrianapolis and rector of the American College at Rome, is reported to be grave ad unchanged by Dr. Hall, attending physician.

The bishop has congestion of the lungs. He arrived in Conshohocken two weeks ago, to visit his sisters, Missea Theresa and Margaret Kennedy, of Spring-Mill avenue.

Col. Thompson Says.

That it would be advisable in some instances for the Administration "trustbusters" to encourage the holding up of prices, rather than undue competiion, is the argument advanced in a brief filed with the House Judiciary Committee by Col. Robert M. Thompson, a capitalist of Washington and Colonel Thompson takes the ground that this Government should not discourage the holding up of prices on code exported in large quantities.

"The German government," he says, recognizes that a reduction in the export value of a compositive as in the port value of a commodity, as in the case of potash, of which it holds a natural monopoly, is an injury to the whole people. Therefore it legislates to prevent undue competition and makes the producers combine to maintain prices.

"We, on the contrary, make it a criminal offense for our producers to consult and make any agreement in regard to the reduction of production or the regulation of prices of copper. The result is that we give from three to four pounds of copper, which we export, in exchange for one pound of tin which we import. It does not cost any more to produce the tin than the copper, but the owners of the tin mines recognize that their supply is limited and they insist upon receiving full values."
